Sept 29, 2016
Frequently asked questions

What is the Third Crossing open house about?
The public open house will be an informal drop-in so that you are able to learn more about the preliminary design and business plan for the Third Crossing. You will also be able to discuss your ideas and questions with City staff and consultants (the Third Crossing team). You can expect to receive information about how the preliminary design and business plan are being developed, the progress that has been made to date, and information/results you can expect to receive in the future as the work progresses to completion.

How will it work?
Information stations will be set up around the room with Third Crossing team members there to discuss questions and comments. Feel free to visit each station to learn more about the project and to share your ideas on the preliminary design and the business plan with members of the Third Crossing team. There will be no formal presentation so you can drop in anytime between 6 and 9 p.m. This meeting format gives you the opportunity to have meaningful discussions with members of the Third Crossing team about topics that are of interest to you regarding the preliminary design and business plan phases of the project. You’ll also find out how the preliminary design options and business plan will inform future decision-making for the Third Crossing.

How will my comments and input be recorded?
Comments and questions will be documented and your feedback will be reviewed and summarized, and shared on the Third Crossing webpage. Comments can be written on flipchart paper, through note-taking and on comment forms that will be provided to you. You can also provide feedback on the comment page at www.cityofkingston.ca/thirdcrossing or by email to thirdcrossing@cityofkingston.ca
